Pegasus Therapeutic Riding Receives Telephony Equipment Donation From Data-Tel and Vodavi

Fairfield, CT— (November 8th, 2005)— DATA-TEL and Vodavi Technology, Inc. (NASDAQ:VTEK), a provider of traditional and next generation business telecommunications solutions, today jointly announced that Pegasus Therapeutic Riding has been selected to receive a telecommunications equipment upgrade to improve its business operations and communications. Pegasus Therapeutic Riding, a non-profit organization, allows children and adults with disabilities throughout Connecticut and New York to reap the benefits and joys of therapeutic horseback riding and other equine assisted activities. Vodavi, which donated the new digital telephone and voice mail system with assorted telephone handsets, established this community outreach program as a way to help 501c3 charitable organizations have access to the latest communication technologies.

DATA-TEL is one of Vodavi's authorized dealers located throughout the U.S. who achieved Vodavi's elite President's Club status making them eligible to nominate a local area charity to receive this one-time equipment donation. DATA-TEL provided installation and training service at no-charge.

"We were in the process of securing approvals and quotes for a new telephone system when DATA-TEL offered the Vodavi equipment for free," said Sandra McBride, Administrative Manager of Pegasus Therapeutic Riding. "Needless to say the timing of this donation was impeccable. As a non-profit organization, we must be very diligent in managing our expenses. Based on our research, purchasing a new, updated and more efficient phone system would have been a major expense. We are so thankful we did not have to just 'settle' on a system that could only do some of the things on our wish list." She added, "We've experienced a tremendous boost to our communication efficiency with the addition of automated attendant, individual extensions and voicemail. Also, the addition of individual voicemail boxes for all of our offsite program staff, that notify their cell phones of messages waiting at the office, is extremely helpful."

"To see how upgraded equipment can make the difference in the mission of a non-profit is rewarding," states Joe Distefano, co-owner of Fairfield, CT-based DATA-TEL. "The old system they were operating on was not able to offer a lot of the newer bells and whistles that businesses are accustomed to in today's fast-paced, mobile environment. We are glad we were able to partner with Vodavi to give Pegasus this opportunity to remix their communications plan to better suit their needs."

About Pegasus Therapeutic Riding

Pegasus Therapeutic Riding was founded in 1975 at the Ox Ridge Hunt Club in Darien, Connecticut by a group of volunteers who believed in the therapeutic power of horseback riding. Beginning with eight physically disabled students, they were determined to bring the benefits and joys of horseback riding to the individuals with disabilities of their community. Today, Pegasus has become one of the largest and most highly regarded therapeutic riding programs in the United States, servicing some 200 students each year in programs at seven locations throughout Fairfield County, Connecticut and Westchester County, New York.
